A photographer (Krishnamma) captures the image of a child (Harsha) moving away from his troupe of actors who is then reunited with his mother. The baby is born with supernatural powers. Because he refuses to cry, they call him Aayirathil Oruvan (Aayirathil = sky; Oruvan = head). He is named after the mythical bird Garuda (), which could travel anywhere across Space and Time. The king (Ramesh Kanna) marries Kalaivani () and plans to make her queen after six months, after she attains 'marriageable age'. Aayirathil Oruvan is very close to Kalaivani, but her mother (Pooja) insists that she would eventually come to love her. But in the meantime, the king falls ill and is in danger. The astrologer (Thambi Durai) predicts that Aayirathil Oruvan will be killed when the moon changes to its new phase. Knowing this, Aayirathil Oruvan's mother makes sure she meets Kalaivani before it happens after which he will grow up free of the curse.
